

Calling all future journalists, economists, and educators: Make your mark on the bioeconomy at SIUE

Want to gain hands-on experience working on a federal research project?

The NCERC at SIUE is seeking undergraduate and graduate students in Mass Communications, Applied Communication Studies, Political Science Business, Education, or other social science disciplines for an exciting research opportunity in the Spring 2018.

The “bioeconomy” is all around us – and from public relations to education, economics, and public policy, professionals in the business and social sciences with experience in studying and communicating STEM concepts are needed. NCERC is looking for SIUE undergrads to work with NCERC staff and top engineers and scientists from the U.S. Department of Energy on a research and training project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor. Each student will be assigned to a research team to support a critical aspect of research communication, dissemination, or education.

- ⇒ Interviews begin in December 2017, with projects beginning in Spring 2018
- ⇒ Upon acceptance, students must enroll in Research or Internship Course in your major

APPLY ONLINE: go to www.ethanolresearch.com/Internships.shtml
and click “TAACCCT Internship Application”